DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 4, 6-10, 12 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Inui et al (JP 2002-4985 A). A computer translation of the detailed description is included herewith. With reference to the translation, a starter is used after an unsuccessful starter-free start attempt as disclosed at paragraph [0033]. Control is responsive to engine speed (paragraph [0031]), which inherently involves evaluating a position of a crankshaft to the extent claimed. Evaluating oil temperature is alternatively claimed, therefore it is not necessary that Inui et al disclose this feature to anticipate claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Inui et al (JP 2002-4985 A) in view of Zeigner et al (US 4,286,683). Inui et al discloses the claimed invention as stated above except for operation by an accelerator. Zeigner et al teaches that it is known to control engine starting by operation of an accelerator (column 3, lines 10-15). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the engine start control of Inui et al so as to control engine starting by operation of an accelerator, as taught by Zeigner et al, in order to provide convenient automatic starting.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 13, 14 and 17-23 are allowed.

Claim 16 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. As stated above, the starting control of Inui et al is responsive to engine speed, which inherently involves evaluating a position of a crankshaft to the extent claimed. Evaluating oil temperature is alternatively claimed, therefore it is not necessary that Inui et al disclose this feature to anticipate claim 1.

Prior Art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Kojima et al (US 2004/0200448 A1) discloses an engine starting device wherein an engine is started either with or without a starter.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
